Timberframe Interiors Dick Pirozzolo, Linda Corzine

Now in paperback, Timberframe Interiors shows that a timberframe home need not be confined to any specific decorating style, but can be tailored to work with any individual decorating preference or taste. The unique aesthetic appeal of timberframe construction is found in no other building style. The grace, lightness, and span that timberframe construction imparts creates a grand and spacious feeling, like a canopy of trees over a country lane. While timberframe homes naturally evoke a country or traditional feeling, Timberframe Interiors illustrates that one need not be confined to that decor. Dick Pirozzolo shows how timberframe construction provides a wonderful beginning to create a warm, friendly atmosphere while responding to a unique set of interior design styles and challenges. Chapters include specifics on color, patterns, lighting, flooring materials, window treatments, furniture groupings, and specific room arrangements. Timberframe Interiors shows with full-color photography that when the decor and the construction join together to establish a fully integrated look, the result is breathtaking.

Dick Pirozzolo has written numerous articles on timberframe construction for Timber Homes Illustrated and Timber Frame Homes. As a veteran author and communications professional, he consults regularly with clients in the home manufacturing, home fashion, and housewares industries. He lives in Massachusetts. Interior designer and photo stylist Linda Corzine owns and operates Decorating Den Interiors in Louisville, Kentucky. Linda also consults regularly with Northeastern Log Homes on photo styling and interior design trends. She lives in Kentucky.
